ACCIDENT IN CLERMONT HARBOR—Elizabeth A. Garcia Billiot, 30, whose address is General Delivery, Clermont Harbor, is taken to Hancock General Hospital by Mobile Medic Ambulance Service following a two-car collision on Beach Boulevard about 10 p.m. Wednesday. According to Hancock County Sheriff's Deputy Glenn Strong, Billiot, driving a 1974 Chevrolet pickup, ran a stop sign at 1001 Cigna of 17 Drake Ln., King's Park, N.Y. Mary Perkins, public relations director for HGH, said Billiot was treated for lacerations to the scalp and neck and was released from the hospital Aug. 2. She has been charged with driving under the influence, Strong said. Strong said Cigna's wife may have sustained a pulled muscle in her back but did not, to his knowledge, seek medical treatment. ## NASA opposes NSTL hunting

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT
National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials are opposed to plans by the U.S. Army to open its leased lands at National Space Technology Laboratories to bow-hunting for deer this fall.

"We are definitely opposed to any hunting on Ammunition Plant lands or any other federal lands at NSTL," said Mack Herring, NASA spokesman at the Hancock County facility.

"Not only are we concerned about the safety and security of our more than 4,000 employees, it has been our position to work with communities and to be sensitive to their feelings," Herring said Friday.

"Through the years, since I first came here in 1963, we have been very clear that we would never allow hunting."

Herring said he feels a Department of Wildlife and Fisheries report of a severe overpopulation of deer in the area is "suspect."

"Any time you conduct a study in the spring the water's going to be up," he said, "and deer will be concentrated in the NSTL area, coming in from the low-lying areas."

Herring also noted that the area shelters other game, including wild turkeys, bald eagles and Florida panthers which is an endangered species.

"Bow-hunting sounds nice on the surface, but a deer bow is a very powerful instrument."

In addition, Herring said the deer at NSTL are very tame.

"I don't think it would be very sporting to hunt a deer you can almost walk up to."

"We totally agree with Mr. Kellar (A. A. Kellar, Hancock Board of Supervisors president) and the Hancock County Board of Supervisors and we have made our position clear to the Army."

Monday the supervisors, at Kellar's request, voted unanimously for the second time to go on record as opposing the deer hunting season announced by U.S. Army officials.

The Army has a 50-year lease on some 7,000 acres of the 13,800-acre NSTL installation.

Adjustment board okays beach condo construction

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT
Following a public hearing Friday the Bay St. Louis Board of Adjustments voted to recommend approval of a height variance to allow construction of a condominium on the old St. Joseph Academy property.

A board member who asked not to be identified said about 50 people attended the hearing to protest the matter.

But only four of them, he said, own property within 300 feet of the proposed condominium site.

Letters notifying all property owners within 300 feet about the meeting, he said, were sent to 25 persons.

"We assumed the other property owners approved or didn't care," he said.

"If they had been against it, they would have been there."

The board member said the board voted to recommend the variance because they felt the new construction would be an asset to the community.

"It's more money in the till that we can use to improve the fire department, streets and many other things the city needs."

"Time marches on," he said.

"We're thinking positive."

The recommendation for approval, he said, will be passed on to the City Council for final action.

Jay LaCoste, a Jackson architect and former Bay St. Louis resident who owns the property on South Beach Boulevard, presented preliminary plans for the structure last month.

The condominium, which would face the beach, is designed to look as much as possible like the old academy building.

A shrine on the property and the old academy gymnasium would be preserved, LaCoste said.

Plans call for a building about 15 stories high with a maximum of seven

Implementation plans explained

Role of education leaders to change under Reform Act

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT
School board members and administrators from Hancock County were told Thursday their roles will change significantly with implementation of the 1982 Education Reform Act.

The Hancock County education leaders joined others from Gulf Coast communities at a conference sponsored by the University of Southern Mississippi Gulf Coast Regional Campus in cooperation with the Gulf Coast School Boards Association.

Thursday's meeting at USM Gulf Park was the last in a two-part series designed to inform school board members and school superintendents in the six Gulf Coast counties of South Mississippi of the particulars of the new legislation.

The first meeting was held July 26 at Gulfport High School with Dr. Ralph Brewer, director of instruction for the State Department of Education.

Speakers at the Gulf Park meeting were Dr. Jane Woodruff from the Office of School Accreditation, State Department of Education, and Dr. George Cannon, superintendent of Meridian Public Schools and a member of the Commission on Teacher and Administrator Education, Certification and Development.

ACCREDITATION
Woodruff discussed four basic changes in school accreditation proposed by a "Performance-Based School Assessment Task Force."

—Beginning July 1, 1986, accreditation will become compulsory for all public elementary and secondary schools. It is currently voluntary.

—The provision of state funds to school districts will become contingent upon compliance with accreditation requirements.

—The accreditation system itself will be based upon factors identified through research as contributing to improved student achievement.

—Local school boards will be accountable for the accreditation status of their schools and school districts.

In order to be accredited, school districts must meet all requirements of the accreditation system, which is divided into policies, procedures, regulations and standards.

Individual schools, Woodruff said, will not be accredited.

They will receive a 0-5 rating that reflects the performance level of that school.

All schools must receive a rating of at least 1.

Districts will receive a composite rating, and a district cannot be rated more than one point higher than that achieved by its lowest-rated school.

The Office of Accreditation of the State Department of Education will determine a district's accreditation based on monitoring of district records, on-site evaluations and random audits.

The on-site evaluations will be conducted every five years by teams of trained and approved evaluators.

Before the five-year evaluation cycle begins, Woodruff said school boards must prepare long-range educational plans describing how they will meet accreditation requirements.

The plans must include a survey of student, faculty and community attitudes toward the district's educational program, an outline of the district's curriculum, an analysis of current student achievement levels and objectives for improving those levels, and standards for high school graduation that include a minimum level of basic skills.

It must also include a plan for "re-teaching" students who fail to meet the minimum standards.

School boards must also make annual public reports and hold public meetings

EPA official to speak at wastewater hearing

By DENA BISNETTE
Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District officials announced Wednesday that they expect a representative from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to attend Monday night's public hearing on the district's updated 201 Facilities Plan.

The hearing will begin at 7 p.m. at the Waveland American Legion Hall, 208-A Coleman Ave., and is designed to collect public comment on the plan for sewage disposal in Bay St. Louis, Waveland and parts of the county.

Ray Eaton of Eaton-Lewis Partnership, the district's engineering firm, said John Hagen, a senior official of the EPA office in Atlanta, Ga., will attend the hearing to answer questions about Alternative Three, the wastewater disposal plan that replaced the district's previously considered spray irrigation system for sewage disposal.

He is also expected to talk about why the EPA declared the spray irrigation proposal economically unfeasible and ineligible for funding.

Wastewater officials will also provide a presentation explaining how Alternative Three works.

A question and answer period will follow the presentation.

Alternative Three, the plan now under consideration, calls for three phases of development, including improvement of the Bay St. Louis lagoon and the Waveland wastewater treatment plant, transfer of the Bay lagoon effluent to the Waveland plant for treatment, and discharge of the treated effluent from both cities into Edwards Bayou.

The present treatment system discharges the effluent from the Bay lagoon into Watts Bayou and the effluent from the Waveland treatment plant into Edwards bayou.

The plan extends to four county areas, including Jourdan River Estates, Jourdan River Isles, Garden Isles and part of Shoreline Park. It is eligible for 85 percent funding in these four areas and 75 percent funding in Bay St. Louis and Waveland.

The plan also includes recommendations for future development of a sewage collection system in the county and for continued improvement and expansion of the existing city treatment facilities.

Eaton said Wednesday that a few revisions for the plan were recommended at the district's July 19 meeting, but reported that those revision will be completed before the hearing.

Copies of the plan are available for public examination at the city libraries in Bay St. Louis and Waveland, according to district official Ethel Schott.

Bay man sues over cable

By DENA BISNETTE
A local resident has filed a suit against MCI Telecommunications, a company that recently installed a long-distance telephone cable across the Bay of St. Louis, because a cable was allegedly buried on his property without his permission.

According to his attorney, Robbie Asher, Joe Buccola owns property located between Beach Boulevard and the bay, directly across from Merchants Bank. Asher said a cable was buried there about June 20 and "interferes with his (Buccola's) full enjoyment of the property."

"He certainly can't do much with the property with the cable there. He can't build because it would destroy the cable," Asher explained.

Asher said Buccola wants the cable removed, as well as $10,000 damages and reasonable rent on the property for the full time the cable is there.

Buccola has deeds to the property that date from the 1930s to back his ownership claim, according to Asher.

According to Laurie Tollison, regional public relations manager for MCI, permission to bury the cable was originally obtained from Seaboard Systems Railroad, since it was believed at that time that the cable would be on Seaboard right-of-way.

"We heard about this suit early this week, and we're sending a crew down to resurvey the property. We're also checking with Seaboard again," she said.

She said MCI hopes to determine who the property belongs to and to reach an agreement with Buccola if the property turns out to be his.

The results of the survey should be available within a few days, she added.

Summer attendance program closes, 17 participate

By DENA BISNETTE

A special summer program for students who failed a grade due to excessive absences during the past school year ended Thursday with a party for its 17 participants.

According to Frank McNeil, Hancock County's attendance officer, the participants all had excessive absences and most of their parents either had to enroll them in the summer program or face court prosecution under the state's compulsory attendance law.

The law, part of the Educational Reform Act of 1982, required children in the first, second and third grade to attend school last year and will add the fourth grade this year. It also required counties to hire attendance officers like McNeil, who works directly with the Hancock County Youth Court system.

The program, used for the first time this summer, is McNeil's way of enforcing that law for the Hancock County and Bay St. Louis school districts. It also involved the children's parents, who had to attend weekly seminars at youth court on various aspects of early childhood education and the compulsory attendance law.

The children themselves, all first, second or third graders, attended classes twice a week at North Bay Elementary School to pick up some of the skills they had missed learning during the regular school year. They were taught by three volunteers, including Sarah Baird of Gulfview Elementary, Kinta Maloney of Hancock North Central and Sherri Ponder of Pass Christian.

"We're going to try to use this program again if it becomes necessary, but we're hoping it will be for a longer time. We'll also attempt to get some kind of funding to pay the teachers," McNeil said.

McNeil said he considered the program a success, at least as far as attendance is concerned. "We've had very few absences from this program," he said.

The program has also helped the children from an academic standpoint. While participation does not promote them to the next grade, McNeil said both school districts have agreed to test them in the fall to see if promotions are possible.

In addition, the children were evaluated by the teachers in the summer program and those evaluations will be turned over to their school principals next year.

"We even found a few students who may need to be in special ed," McNeil said. "It's a good possibility we would never have known if they hadn't attended this program because they were absent so much during the school year that they were never tested."

The party that closed the program Thursday featured an awards ceremony for the children. Speakers were county special education director Jeannette Handshoe and Youth Court Judge Michael Haas.

Consumer Update

On home mortgages—

According to the U.S. News Washington Letter, people with unpredictable salaries or on fixed incomes should avoid adjustable rate mortgages.

ARM's might be a consideration for a younger person with a growing income. Many lenders are insisting on 10 percent down and that loan payments not exceed 25 percent of income. These steps can reduce risk involved in ARM's.

On investing—

To determine whether tax-exempt investments would provide greater yield than fully taxable investments, you will need to consider your tax bracket.

Compare yields of a tax-free instrument and a taxable one by finding at what point the tax advantage offsets the lower yield. To do this, divide the tax-free interest rate by the interest rate yield on a tax### able investment.

Subtract this percentage from 100 percent. This gives you the tax bracket in which the two investments would bring the same actual return on investments.

Example:

1. Tax-free rate of 9 percent
2. Taxable rate of 12 percent
3. 9 tax-free divided by 12 taxable rate equals 75 percent.
4. 100 - 75 = 25 percent.
5. 25 percent tax bracket is the bracket at which the two investments are equal in return.

Airline Liability—

The limit on which airlines pay for lost, damaged, or delayed luggage was raised from $750 to $1,250 per passenger (not per bag) as of April 10, 1984. This is from the Civil Aeronautics Board.

ONE-CAR ACCIDENT IN WAVELAND—Waveland Patrolman Oscar Thomas notes the details of a one-car accident that occurred Saturday about 5:50 a.m. on Beach Boulevard between Lafitte and Mollere Drives in Waveland. The automobile, driven by a 16-year-old female, apparently left the road, struck a fence and flipped over, landing upside down on the lawn of Malcolm Monroe at 305 N. Beach Blvd. Investigating officers included Thomas and Patrolmen Chuck James and Jimmy Varnell. Varnell reported the girl was arrested for driving under the influence and has been turned over to juvenile authorities. (Photo by Jimmy Varnell)

Attorney general to open Gulf Coast office Monday

Attorney General Ed Pittman will open a regional office on the Gulf Coast Monday.

The office will be a full-service office, offering residents of the Coast and South Mississippi all the services offered by the office in Jackson, Pittman said.

Located on the second floor of the Second Judicial District Courthouse in Biloxi, the attorney general's office will be staffed by attorneys sent from Jackson on a rotating basis, but Pittman hopes to add a permanent assistant attorney general for the Coast office within the next few months.

"These first months will be somewhat experimental," Pittman said.

"We believe there is a need for the attorney general to establish a closer relationship with the Coast area and to be available to local officials and citizens. Right now, we plan to concentrate our efforts in the fields of consumer protection and advice, and assistance to local officials. As the general public becomes more accustomed to our presence there, we may find needs in other areas."

The office will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, with the formal opening set for 11 a.m. Monday, Aug. 6.

Absences delay planning meet

Lacking a quorum, the Hancock County Planning Commission was unable to hold its scheduled meeting Thursday night.

The five-member commission must have at least three members present to conduct business and only two members attended.

The commission meets again on Sept. 6 at 7 p.m. in the courthouse.

Englishman brings country antiques to first Hancock County auction

By DENA BISNETTE

An English antique dealer is holding his first auction in Bay St. Louis Thursday and hopes to start auctioning antiques here on a regular basis.

Nicholas Parsonson, representing Wardson and Company of Cornwall, England, said he got the idea for the auction when his associate Martin Ward visited an American cousin, Al Clack of Bay St. Louis. After looking at various parts of the coast as well as cities like New Orleans, Atlanta and Houston, he and Ward decided to try selling their antiques here.

Parsonson arrived last Wednesday for the first auction, which will be held at the Hancock County fairground just past the National Guard Armory on Longfellow Road. In preparation for the event, he will be on hand to provide the public with information about his company's products during public viewing hours this week and will conduct a seminar on English antiques at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the fairgrounds pavilion.

Parsonson said he hopes to attract several hundred customers Thursday because he hopes to be able to hold four or five auctions in Bay St. Louis each year. He also wants a reason to visit the area again.

"Bay St. Louis seems to be a superb place. I've been to the States many times but I've never been down here. Now I shan't be going anywhere else," he commented.

Parsonson does not always accompany his firm's products, but said he usually attends the first auction when Wardson and Company ships to a new location. He also said he wanted to visit Bay St. Louis after hearing about it from Ward, who was here in April.

Most of the over 300 pieces to be sold Thursday are country-style pine or oak furniture items from the West of England. Some smaller items and more elaborate city-type furniture is also included.

The dates on the items range from 1790 for a Royal Navy chart to 1920 for a set of dishes. "We absolutely stand by the dates," said Parsonson, who is a member of the London and Provincial Antique Dealers Association and spends much of his time authenticating and appraising antiques for the governments of Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Canada and other countries.

He is also a member of the Atlantic Shipping Federation, which gives him the opportunity to see shipments other dealers send to the U.S. That experience and previous Wardson and Company sales in the U.S. helped him decide what type of furniture to bring to Bay St. Louis.

Most of the pieces to be sold Thursday are pine or oak country-style furniture from rural western England.

"I find the country furniture more popular," Parsonson said. "I believe price is a factor in that, because the more elaborate so-called city antiques can cost thousands of dollars while the country items can cost less than $100."

"Americans are quite receptive to English antiques, particularly the young people because they buy items that they can use and are looking for something inexpensive. I've sent French antiques over in the past but they didn't do well at all."

Parsonson said he is looking forward to talking to the people who come to view the antiques this week, something he considers one of the more pleasant aspects of his job.

"The great thing about antiques is that not everything has to be valuable to be nice or to be interesting."

"These people tend to try to describe something they have at home and want to know the value or the history of it, then they want to know how I can tell so much without seeing the piece. It's surprising sometimes how accurate you can be from a simple description."

He also said customers ask a lot of questions about cleaning and restoring antiques, both those they intend to buy and those they already have.

"Antiques make a lovely business to be in. Most of the customers are very interested, and you can get into a real conversation about antiques. It's not as if you were selling washing machines. It's also an area where people can express their individuality," Parsonson commented.

Corps of Engineers seeks comments on proposed dredging at Bayou Cadet

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Mobile District, has set an Aug. 13 deadline for comments regarding Terrell M. Ladner's application to dredge about 12 acres at Bayou Cadet to store boats.

Ribbon-cutting ceremonies were held July 24 for Ladner's ice plant at Bayou Cadet.

The area he wants to dredge, Ladner said, is about 400 feet away from his facility, across the street from Carmel's Seafood.

"I've been trying for years and years to get a harbor down here," he said. "I bought the property ten years ago this October."

Ladner said he presently has about 15 boats on this property and "could put 100 more out there" if I had the room.

Each of the three proposed sites, he said, should hold 50 big boats.

"But, of course, they wouldn't all be big."

The areas proposed to be dredged are 900 x 55 feet, 900 x 40 feet and 300 x 60 feet.

All would be dredged to a depth of 8 feet.

According to the Corps' public notice, a preliminary assessment of the impacts of the proposed activity indicates it is not expected to have a significant effect upon the quality of the human environment, and that an environmental impact statement will not be prepared.

"Comments and information received in response to this public notice will be considered and incorporated into a final environmental assessment to determine whether or not this preliminary determination should be changed," the public notice states.

Comments regarding Ladner's application should refer to Public Notice No. MS84-00096-N and should be directed to the District Engineer, U.S. Army Engineer District, PO Box 2288, Mobile, Ala. 36628, attention Regulatory Branch.

Home economist offers shadow applique class

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT

A "shadow applique" class will be taught Tuesday at 10 a.m. by Hancock County Extension Home Economist Darlene Underwood.

"Shadow applique," Underwood explained, is a technique of sandwiching colored fabrics between sheer fabric and backing for a decorative effect.

The technique, she said, can be used for home furnishing accessories or for clothing.

A kit of supplies for the class will cost $1 and will be sufficient for a small project which can be used to make a pillow top.

Participants must pre-register by calling Underwood at 467-5456 before 5 p.m. Monday.

to discuss their progress, Woodruff said.

If discrepancies or apparent deficiencies are noted at any time during the process, districts will be given an opportunity to correct any errors in information.

If the deficiencies still exist, the district will be given an accredited-probationary status which will remain until the deficiencies are corrected.

A district placed on probationary status which fails to submit an improvement plan or fails to successfully carry it out will be given a discredited status and technical assistance will be provided by State Department of Education personnel.

"There will need to be a high level of interaction among all of the people who make up the school district—boards, administrators and staff," Woodruff cautioned.

"This is a fundamental change in the way we are operating our schools and in our expectations of our schools."

"To carry out this change successfully, there will have to be a high level of commitment from all school staff."

"The quality of leadership provided by the individuals who directly implement this plan will have great bearing on the success of our efforts."

"We are talking about not only behavioral changes in staff and students, but a fundamental change in attitude in everyone who works in the schools."

Woodruff said the task force's recommendations will be field-tested for the next two years, with plans to install the new standards statewide in the fall of 1986.

Graduation Requirements

New standards for high school graduation are to be applied in the 1988-89 school year, Woodruff said.

The graduation requirements are being raised to 18 Carnegie units including four units in English, two in math, two in science and two in social studies.

The two science units must include one unit in a laboratory science, and the social studies requirement includes American history and state and federal government, Woodruff said.

CERTIFICATION

Prefacing his discussion about teacher certification and staff development, Cannon called the Education Reform Act "one of the most significant pieces of legislation to come out of the state in decades."

"If you're going to have good schools you have to start with teacher education institutions," he said.

"You have to train teachers, you have to have a good teacher evaluation and to have to continue to develop your staff."

If recommendations from the Commission on Teacher and Administrator Education, Certification and Development are adopted, teacher training institutions will require an additional 30 hours of academia for its graduates in elementary education.

"That's 30 hours above the core requirements in the fields of math, English, science and social science," Cannon said.

In addition, the commission recommends the required minimum score on the National Teacher Examination be raised from the sixth percentile to the 40th percentile.

"We want our teachers to be better prepared," Cannon said.

Under the new certification plan, beginning teachers would be given a one-year provisional certificate after which they would be evaluated by a trained team probably including, Cannon said, the school principal, a peer teacher and possibly someone from a university or another district.

Following the evaluation, administrators would recommend or not recommend the teacher for standard certification.

School boards would have to approve the administrators' evaluation.

Cannon said teachers would have up to three years to be certified but most, he predicted, would receive standard certification after the first year.

"If entrance requirements are high and you are certain teachers know their content area when they graduate, then the provisional year should be a growth year for the teacher."

"The commission is recommending we move away from the concept of recertification as it currently exists," Cannon explained.

Instead, the commission recommends mandating a staff inservice program in all school districts.

"The universities," Cannon said, "will have a significant role in development of these staff development programs," which will be designed to meet the varying needs of individual districts.

Other changes include:

- Automatic endorsement for other teaching areas if teachers successfully pass appropriate competency tests;
- Additional flexibility to allow elementary teachers to teach in secondary schools or vice versa; and
- Providing avenues for persons who have not graduated from a teacher training program to enter the teaching profession if they successfully pass appropriate competency tests.

"We're talking in terms of a more generic certification generally," Cannon explained.

Cannon said he feels it is essential that salary levels be raised for Mississippi educators.

"I don't think you can talk about merit pay until you raise the salary level for all teachers."

"But," he added, "I think sometimes we're not attracting the best people to education not only because of low salaries but because of lack of academic stimulation."

Cannon said the commission's recommendations will be submitted to the State Board of Education for final action.

"What has been established by the commission is a kind of philosophical base," he said.

Power company lists Bay-Waveland taxes

Mississippi Power Company has paid the City of Bay St. Louis $44,556 and the City of Waveland $25,427 in franchise fees for the first two quarters of 1984, according to Bernard Jacob, supervisor for the company's Bay St. Louis/Pass Christian area.

Jacob said the payments by Mississippi Power Company are used by the cities to help pay for community services such as police and fire protection, education, streets and recreation.

The franchise payments are based on three percent of the Gulfport-based utility's revenues received from the sale of electricity to its retail customers in municipalities.

Mississippi Power Company pays a franchise fee to 52 municipalities in its 23-county service area in southeast Mississippi. The utility paid more than $6.3 million in franchise funds to these towns and communities during the four quarters of 1983.

Senatorial candidate appeals to state's Baptist ministers

Democratic senatorial candidate William Winter feels that Mississippi is pulling itself up by its bootstraps, but there are still concerns which need to be addressed on the national level.

Speaking before a statewide meeting of Baptist ministers in Jackson, the former governor said that Mississippi is still the poorest state in the union and still has the lowest per capita income.

"During my administration as governor we invested a lot of money in education and that's something I'm proud of," Winter told the 30th annual session of the Progressive Baptist State Convention of Mississippi, Inc.

But he said that at the same time his administration was working to improve Mississippi's education, the Republicans were reducing federal funding for education to the lowest level which it has been in 15 years.

"We must have a United States Senator who will reverse this process," he said.

Winter said that his experience as governor had given him a unique perspective on the state's problems which he said he would use to improve educational facilities, health care and economic opportunities for the state.

IMPEACHMENT

"Summer of Judgment: The Impeachment Hearings," a sequel to last year's "Summer of Judgment: The Watergate Hearings," which is one of PBS' most-watched public affairs specials, can be seen at 9 p.m., Thursday, Aug. 9 on Mississippi Educational Television.

This new program, focusing on the impeachment element of the Watergate ordeal in the summer of 1974, goes behind the scenes for interviews and insights from some of the members of the House Judiciary Committee, and others involved, who were responsible for passing judgment on President Richard Nixon.

Among the persons who share their memories of that summer are Chairman Peter Rodino (D-NJ); former Cong. Barbara Jordan (D-Tex.); and John Doar, special counsel for the Judiciary Committee.

Quotables by CUEVAS

An important public hearing will be held by the Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District Monday night at the American Legion Home on Coleman Avenue in Waveland.

The public hearing is to begin at 7 p.m. for the purpose of receiving public comments on the 1984 update of the 201 facilities plan for Hancock County and Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District. As many of you know, the spray irrigation project was found to be too expensive for funding purposes, and a fundable alternate plan is to be discussed.

We feel this is an important meeting and it should be of concern to all citizens.

It is our understanding members of the Environmental Protection Agency will be present to answer questions.

The subject of paving the Texas Flat Road was one of the topics of discussion last week at a meeting of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors.

The need for surfacing the Texas Flat Road has been talked about so many times over the past 20 or so years.

McLeod State Park is very nice, but people with sinus problems like us avoid it because of the dusty entrance road.

It seems everyone agrees on the need to have Texas Flat Road surfaced, and that is a good start.

We realize there are only a handful of residents living on Texas Flat Road because of the buffer zone, but many people could benefit from an improved road.

It would sure be of benefit to many people working at NSTL, not to mention McLeod State Park.

We know many residents are seriously pushing for improvements to the road and are hoping some solution will be found.

Today is the final day for the annual St. Clare's Church Fair in Waveland.

The fishing rodeo continues through today along with other fair activities including the 5-K and 1-Mile Fun Run which is scheduled for 5 p.m.

If you are looking for something to do this afternoon, you may want to visit the fair, eat some good food and possibly meet some old friends.

Tips on eye care

By John L. Isler, MD

My optometrist told me I have a cataract in my left eye, which will have to be removed in about a year. He told me I have to wait that long until it "ripens." Already, my vision is dim. Is there anything that can be done in the meantime? I like very much to read.

Mrs. E. H., Lexington, KY

Dear Mrs. E.H.:

When and if you have surgery performed for your cataract, it must be performed by a licensed ophthalmologist, not an optometrist. Optometrists perform many valuable services, but eye surgery is not one of them.

The field of medicine, particularly ophthalmology, is changing rapidly, as you know. There have been more changes in ophthalmology in the past two decades than there were in the century previous.

One of those changes affects you. Cataracts, as I am sure your optometrist explained, is a natural result of the body's aging process. The eye operation to remove cataracts is a fairly simple one, often done on an outpatient basis.

But the point is that the "ripening" process to which you refer is a myth. Years ago, eye doctors—including ophthalmologists—preferred to wait until the cataractous material in the eye's lens hardened.

This allowed them to remove all of it. But today's highly sophisticated microsurgical instruments allow removal of the cataractous material much earlier. And with the addition of an intraocular lens implant, you can now hope to have excellent results following surgery without cumbersome "cataract" glasses or cataract contacts.

If you are comfortable waiting for your cataract operation, by all means go ahead. But if you would like to try to have the problem resolved now, consult a qualified ophthalmologist in your area. Unless there are special, mitigating circumstances, there is no longer any need to tolerate poor vision while waiting for your cataract to "ripen."

(If you have a question concerning your vision, write to "Tips on Eye Care," in care of Florida Eye Clinic, P.O. Box 19446, Orlando, Fla. 32814.

ART CONTEST WINNERS—Winners of the Hancock County Historical Society's recent art contest include Edmee Cagle, senior citizens division; Rebecca Markel, tied for adult division; Chris Bradley, children's division; and Carol Vegas, tied for adult division. Congratulating the winners is Patt Cuculla, contest chairman. The winning pen-and-ink drawings feature historical buildings in Hancock County including the Carroll Plantation home, built about 1870; the former residence of Judge Julius C. Monet, a mayor of Bay St. Louis when the city was called Shieldsboro in the late 1800s; St. Joseph Church; and the Shotgun Commercial, constructed about 1900 and now an antique shop. All four drawings have been reproduced on note paper that will be sold in local gift shops to raise funds for audio-visual equipment for the society. (Staff photo by Dena Bisnette)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Governor's staff member outlines Allain's support of raising minimum drinking age

July 31, 1984

Letter to the Editor:

Recently the President of the United States signed legislation assessing penalties on the highway funds of states which do not raise their minimum drinking age to 21 by Sept. 30, 1986.

It has been stated in several newspaper editorials across the state that this is the reason why the governor has come out supporting state legislation to raise the drinking age to 21 and that he has been late in doing so.

In response to these editorials, we offer the following facts.

While serving as attorney general, prior to being elected governor, Mr. Allain was very involved in alcohol programs, particularly with providing interpretations and opinions concerning the Implied Consent Act.

During his campaign, Governor Allain stated that he fully supported the Governor's Task Force on Drunk Driving, which was organized during Governor Winter's administration and whose recommendations included raising the minimum drinking age to 21.

After being elected, Governor Allain instructed his representative of the Highway Safety Program to pursue both local and legislative activities to raise the minimum drinking age to 21. This was accomplished through contacts with local and state agencies, citizen support groups, victims, and other interested citizens who testified before the Legislature on the severity of the problem.

The above activities were conducted prior to President Reagan's signing legislation assessing penalties on highway funds to the states which do not raise their minimum drinking age to 21 by Sept. 30, 1986, as were preparations for a statewide emphasis, entitled "Mississippi 21," on this issue.

The "Mississippi 21" Rally was held by the governor to solicit additional support from state and local organizations/agencies for raising the minimum drinking age in the state to 21 and to bring the public's attention to the severity of the problem of young drinking drivers in Mississippi.

The rally resulted from efforts made by Governor Allain long before any national legislation was considered.

We hope this response lends some clarity to the issue and we take this means to reiterating the fact that Governor Allain stands steadfastly behind raising the legal drinking age to 21 and will continue to demonstrate his commitment in this regard.

Sincerely,
Roy Thigpen
Governor's Representative

Waterway speed limits encroach on rights of sports fishermen, water-skiers and pleasure boat enthusiasts

Aug. 1, 1984

Letters to the Editor
Sea Coast Echo

Hancock County sports fishermen, water-skiers and pleasure boat enthusiasts, your right to use Hancock County waterways is in jeopardy.

A few self-serving residents are fighting to impose a 5-mile-per-hour speed limit on bayous and rivers in front of their homes.

As predicted by bayou residents who do enjoy water-skiing and safe boating, this trend for everyone to jump on the band wagon and add their waterfront property to the ever creeping 5-mile-per-hour speed limit is unfolding before our very eyes.

It will soon take you hours to boat to your favorite fishing spot and you, your children and grandchildren will never water-ski on our beautiful bayous.

How would you like to have all of Hancock County water-skiing in one river, the Jourdan River.

With more and more Jourdan River property owners joining the others to get the limit imposed in front of their houses too, we soon may have to ski in the bay or maybe in the Mississippi Sound.

There have always been laws governing safe boating operation and they should be enforced.

I am not saying we should speed through narrow man-made channels, harbor approaches or even above Highway 603 in the McLeod park area.

What I want to protect is my right to safely boat in wide waterways of our beautiful Hancock County.

Please join with me on Sept. 4 at 7 p.m. in the Board of Supervisors meeting room to protect your rights.

Betsy Nolan
Rotten Bayou Resident

Focus on Small Business

U.S. Small Business Administration

By Dorothy A. Overall
Biloxi Branch Office

Are there any opportunities, outside of Congressional lobbying, for small business owners to express their concerns to Washington?

Beginning early next year, small business owners in every state will be able to participate in a series of White House Conferences on Small Business, under legislation recently signed by President Reagan.

These conferences will be held in every state and will culminate in a final conference at the White House during 1986.

The conferences are intended to increase the public awareness of small business and the essential role it plays in the American economy, and to identify some of the major problems faced by small businesses.

Other purposes include examining the status of women and minorities as small business owners, and to assist small business in carrying out its role as the nation's number one job creator.

But the main role of the series of conferences is to assemble small business owners and interests to develop specific and comprehensive recommendations for executive and Congressional action, if appropriate, to help maintain and encourage small business' role in the economy.

Announcements of the state conferences will be made in plenty of time for any small business owner to participate.

Rent costs for small businesses represent a heavy outlay. What can be done to hold down rent costs?

Look up—at least that's the advice of one study.

A major New York City bank (Citibank) surveyed the second, third and fourth floors of 212 buildings along a Brooklyn, N.Y., retail corridor. The results may be as applicable to your town as they were in Brooklyn.

The survey found in those 212 buildings about 125,000 square feet of vacant space available at rents as low as $4 per square foot. Rents for prime office space in nearby Manhattan exceeded $35 per square foot.

COUNTY UNIT

Another Mississippi county has turned its back on inefficiency and wastefulness, adopting the unit system of county road operations.

Neshoba County made the decision a few weeks ago, the seventh county in the state to adopt the unit system.

In adopting the unit system, Neshoba County supervisors abandoned the beat system of road operations, a system which allows five separate road systems to operate within a county.

And, with those five systems come five sets of expensive equipment, five expensive repair shops, five purchasing systems, and five labor forces.

Studies over the past 20 years have shown that Mississippi's antiquated system of county road operations is among the most expensive, and the most inefficient, road systems in America. Still, 75 counties operate under the beat system.

Mississippi taxpayers deserve the most efficient use of their tax dollars; they aren't getting it in most counties.

bargains in second-story space:

—Office services firms—printing, reproduction, computer processing, copying.

—Small manufacturing—labor-intensive firms that don't need a large stockpile of goods.

—Repair shops such as those for appliance and general "fix-it."

—Instructional firms—those engaging in teaching endeavors such as exercising, weight loss and self-improvement.

Q. I had my down successful business for many years before I sold out and retired. I am chafing at the bit for something to do. Any suggestions?

A. Yes, you can recycle your skills to help other managers and owners of small businesses. You'll probably get a good deal of personal satisfaction in so doing.

You won't collect a pay check or be running the show, but there's probably a spot in your local SCORE organization for your talents. SCORE stands for Service Corps of Retired Executives and it's part of the management counseling and advice program of the U.S. Small Business Administration.

As a SCORE member you would contribute with free counseling on how to start, manage or expand a small business.

SCORE members are unpaid volunteer counselors. They identify problems of a small firm, and counsel it about those problems. The time you spend with SCORE is up to you.

THE FATE OF MAN

"Master," the scholar asked the sage,
"do you wonder, when the leaves fall,
"if such is also the fate of man?"

"Their fate is a goodly one," said the sage "Leaves fall—their forms remain, reclothing themselves again and again,
And how much more of value is man!"

—From "The Scholar And The Sage"

The Sea Coast Echo Book Review

By Joe Pilet

A gem of a book just rolled from the Nightingale Press of Gulfport. It's a limited first edition of only 500 copies entitled "The Scholar and the Sage."

Elizabeth Hillery Sullivan of Bay St. Louis wrote this masterpiece, and the photographic illustrations were the work of Bob Hubbard of Waveland.

The book reflects the ever-growing spirituality of its author whose zenith many felt had been reached in her poems entitled "Singing on the Sea Wall" which came out in 1981.

This volume takes a fresh and deeper look at emotions, questions and mysteries of life as we know it on Planet Earth.

Who is the scholar and who the sage? The scholar posed 112 questions, wisely and aptly answered by the sage.

Questions that deal with waves of conscience such as "Can selfish souls ever find serenity?" "When criminals commit unforgivable crimes, how can we forgive them?" "Can sorrow ever be good for anything?" "Do you believe in eternal life?" and the thought-provoking question, "What is the greatest duty of man to the world?"

The sage, master of wisdom, whispered replies and guided the pen of Elizabeth Hillery Sullivan.

The beautiful prose-poetry in Scholar and the Sage brings an awareness of some Greater Force using the pen of Elizabeth to reveal peaceful truths—truth to ponder, truth to trust, truth to guide the reader toward higher planes of attitude.

Supervisors set speed hearing

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT

Recently-enacted waterway speed limits remain in effect in Hancock County, but the board of supervisors will conduct a public hearing at 7 p.m. Sept. 4 to consider the matter further.

The speed limits, set in June following requests from Shoreline Park Civic Association, Purcell Corporation and Hancock County Park Commission, are five miles per hour in all inner canals of Shoreline Park subdivision, a portion of Rotten Bayou and the canal linking Cutoff Bayou to the yacht harbor in Diamondhead, and 10 miles per hour in the Jourdan River upstream from Highway 603 including McLeod Park.

The decision to hold a hearing was made Monday after attorney Lucien M. Gex Jr. presented a petition from 29 Diamondhead property owners who want the speed limit retained.

Last month, eight petitioners asked that the speed limit be rescinded in Rotten Bayou.

"Water-skiing is causing erosion of banks," Gex said Monday.

"We have the Jourdan River—probably one of the finest water-skiing areas in the South. There's plenty of room for water-skiing there."

"I don't see why there can't be at least one piece of waterway where people are not subject to noise, erosion, etc."

"This is not all of Rotten Bayou," Gex noted.

"This is just Unit 6."

But Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner moved to rescind the speed limit in Rotten Bayou, saying he had personally made a site inspection and found little erosion.

"What there was seemed to be from drainoff."

Ladner's motion died for lack of a second and the board agreed to conduct a hearing.

Requests for waterway speed limits have also been received from Jourdan River Estates Property Owners Association and residents of Jourdan River Shores.

Board President A.A. Kellar said those requests have been taken under advisement.

Have you ever wondered how the eggplant, that elegant and ever so versatile vegetable, got its name? Well, I've been wondering for a long time, and have finally come to the conclusion that perhaps some variety and size of eggplant long ago resembled a hen's egg—hence the name was born. What do you think?

For, not only is the eggplant versatile, it's also variable in color (from just about white or pale green to the deep purple with which we are most familiar) and in size (from small and round to long and pear-shaped and all shapes in between) and in ways to enjoy it.

The original home of the eggplant is believed to have been the East Indies, but it was also known early on in India. It was not until the Middle Ages that the eggplant was brought to Spain by the conquering Moors. And eventually the eggplant found its way to America.

Although eggplant is available all through the year, it somehow tastes best to me in midsummer and early fall, when nature's bounty of fresher than fresh vegetables can all be combined in spur-of-the-moment dishes, all delicious. Which brings us to:

GEORGIA COURTENAY'S EGGPLANT SPECIAL

This recipe depends upon the quantity you want and the number of hungry diners at table. It's just as tasty cold the next day, by the way.

First, make your tomato sauce. At this time of year Georgia prefers, as I do, to make her sauce from fresh tomatoes, onions, celery and a touch of garlic; but you may use canned or bottled tomato sauce if you wish. Slice the eggplant, dip into an egg, milk and flour batter and fry to a turn in hot oil.

Layer sliced eggplant, tomato sauce and shredded Mozzarella and Monterey Jack cheese in a casserole dish. Add another layer, and top the whole with additional dashes of Parmesan cheese. Bake in a 350 degree oven for a half hour—and enjoy!

Eggplant is also delicious French fried as you do potatoes—just slice in thin lengthwise slices, bread them if you wish, and fry in hot oil, then drain well. It's a delightful change from the usual French Fries!

Would you believe that the onion, that underground bulb, is a member of the lily of the valley family, along with the tulip, the chive, the shallot and so forth? A rose by any other name, and all that sort of thing!

The pungent and aromatic onion, so versatile in cookery, adds, as we all know, a special flavor to roasts and casseroles, soups, stews, salads and many other dishes. But the onion stands on its own as a vegetable, too, although many cooks fail to take advantage of this.

My favorite salad these summer days is composed of fresh-from-the-garden tomatoes and the small "boiling" onions, sliced thin and well peppered, lavished with olive oil and a "scanting" of vinegar, without any other embellishments, not even lettuce. And who can resist a bowl of onion soup, topped with a thick crust of

Mareno—Mastic

St. Paul's Catholic Church in Pass Christian was the setting for the June 23 marriage of Michele Marie Mastic of Pass Christian and Terry Anthony Mareno of Mobile, Ala. The Rev. Charles Venus celebrated a Nuptial Mass and officiated at the 2 p.m. double ring ceremony.

The bride is a daughter of Mike J. Mastic Sr. of Temple, Tex. and the late Thelma Adam Mastic. The groom's parents are Catherine Mareno of Mobile and the late Michael J. Mareno Sr.

The sanctuary was decorated with arrangements of lavender and white roses and spring flowers and heart shaped candelabra.

Musical selections were performed by Mrs. Charles Weston, organist, of Pass Christian.

Given in marriage by her brother, Michael J. Mastic of Willoughby, Ohio, the bride wore a formal gown of white organza fashioned with Queen Anne neckline and empire bodice of imported lace. Raschel lace embellished with seed pearls adorned the bodice and the slender skirt was enhanced by a crystal pleated panel and swept to a cathedral train with full lace center panel. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a headpiece of raschel lace with scalloped pearl border.

She carried a colonial style bouquet of white roses, stephanotis, lily-of-the-valley and baby's breath with pale lavender roses and lace trim.

Janet Mastic of Pass Christian attended her sister as maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Lynne Landreneau of Prairieville, La., cousin of the bride; Mary Mareno of Theodore, Ala., sister-in-law of the groom; and Susan Starita of Waveland.

The attendants were attired in formal gowns of taffeta, each featuring a sweetheart neckline and cape sleeves with full skirt and deeply flounced ruffle. Matching portrait hats were trimmed in lavender illusion, with the maid of honor's trimmed in huckleberry.

They carried nosegays of lavender silk roses, baby's breath, stephanotis, lily-of-the-valley and lace.

Pete Melech of Mobile, Ala. was best man.

Groomsmen were Steve Grasich of Ocean Springs and Steve Shaw and Donnie Warren of Mobile, all cousins of the groom.

Lee Landreneau of Prairieville, La. and J. John Tranchina of New Orleans were ushers.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Knights of Columbus home, in Pass

Christian. Those assisting were Mrs. Eulie Stephens, R.J. Stephens and Arleen Garcia, all of Bay St. Louis; Mrs. Denise Keener of Waveland; Donna Stephens of Ocean Springs and Melanie Stephens of Metairie.

Following a wedding trip to Panama City Beach, Fla., the couple resides in Pass Christian.

cheese, run under the broiler to "crust" the cheese? Or onions roasted whole along with potatoes and carrots, alongside a pork or beef roast—the variations are endless and delicious.

The word "onion" comes from the French language through Latin, because of the single-shaped bulb, and it is said that the ancient Egyptians considered the onion the Symbol of the Universe.

Slaves building the great Pyramids of Egypt, history tells us, existed on a diet of onions, radishes and garlic—healthy, I am sure, but not so conducive to keeping friends around. The American Indians devoured wild onions along with their other foods, and introduced them into the colonists' diet.

From the tiniest buttons to the giant reds, there's a special tang to onions. A real taste treat is

STUFFED ONIONS

6 large onions, preferably Bermuda, peeled

$\frac{1}{2}$  lb. ground or finely-chopped beef, veal, ham or chicken
2 strips bacon, chopped or diced
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cup sour cream
1 Tbsp. or so chopped celery, parsley
1 cup soft bread crumbs (don't toast 'em this time)

1 cup stock or bouillon
Butter or margarine
Parboil the onions several minutes, or until tender. Scoop out the centers, set the shells aside and chop the pulp which you've removed. Saute this with the meat or chicken and bacon, and add the remaining ingredients, except for the butter and bouillon.

Pile the mixture into the onion shells, dot with the butter, and bake in a shallow casserole or pan, into which you've first poured the bouillon, in a preheated oven at 400 degrees for about 45 minutes.

Pearlington church to show Graham's 'Living Word'

'The Living Word,' a new film produced by World Wide Pictures, will be presented by First Southern Baptist Church of Pearlington on Sunday, Aug. 12 at 7 p.m.

The showing is free and open to the public.

Featuring narration by Billy Graham and Cliff Barrows, the film weaves together Scripture passages, works of religious art and music with color footage filmed in the Holy Land.

"The film touches the heart and mind of the viewer with its relevance to twentieth-century mankind," said Rev. Wendall S. Ward, First Southern pastor.

Rich in visual beauty and enhanced by a powerful, original, musical score, 'The Living Word' brings the pages of the Bible to life in a fresh new way, the pastor feels.

Ward is extending an invitation to all interested persons to attend.

"The Living Word is an outstanding film for anyone who has unanswered questions about just what the Bible means to us today," Ward continued.

"The producers of the film feel the real beauty of the production is not so much the color photography, which is truly memorable, but more the clear way in which it explains what the Christian faith really is. God has a plan for us, set in motion at the moment of Creation, and it's still being realized today. The film aims to help each viewer discover that plan, and to see how our lives fit into that plan," Ward said.

World Wide Pictures, producer of The Living Word, is the film ministry of the Billy Graham organization. Among the company's other releases are The Hiding Place and the recent film, Joni, which stars Joni Eareckson, a quadriplegic, as herself.

IRS delays issue of heavy vehicle use tax forms

Sylvia Wren, director of the Internal Revenue Service in Mississippi, said the IRS will delay issuing form 2290, "Federal Use Tax Return for Highway Motor Vehicles," continuing the rate schedule for the heavy vehicle use tax for periods beginning July 1, 1984.

The decision to delay issuing the forms was made because a provision of recent legislation changed the heavy vehicle use tax rate scheduled to go into effect on July 1, Ms. Wren said.

The rate which was effective under the old law was enacted as part of the Highway Revenue Act of 1982. The rate in the new legislation is lower and also would be effective July 1.

With the delay in issuing Form 2290, the due date for filing the return and paying the tax has been extended from Aug. 31 to Sept. 30, 1984. The IRS will mail Form 2290 to taxpayers who filed a return last year.

Ms. Wren added that state governments have been informed that they may register vehicles between July 1 and Dec. 31, 1984, without verifying payment of the use tax.

However, as provided by the Highway Revenue Act of 1982, states must verify payment of the use tax as a condition of vehicle registration beginning Jan. 1, 1985.

Pearlington students listed by 'Distinguished Society'

Rev. Wendall S. Ward Jr., pastor of First Southern Baptist Church in Pearlington, reports students have been accepted from the congregation for membership in The Society of Distinguished American High School Students.

Founded in 1968, the society has honored some of the most outstanding high school students in the nation.

To qualify for society membership, a nominee must excel in academics, extracurricular, or civic activities and be nominated by a local sponsor.

Once accepted for this select honor, members become eligible to compete for college scholarships through the society's National Awards Program.

This year 128 colleges and universities have earmarked scholarship funds for society members.

Students from First Southern Baptist Church awarded membership are Taren A. Breland, DuJuan Griffin and Sandy L. Reynolds, all students at Bay High.

The society has also presented a National Appreciation Award to Charles W. Boyd, the students' sponsor.

This award was made "in acknowledgement of untiring efforts and steadfast dedication on behalf of the students from First Southern Baptist Church."

Financial Planning for the Two-Paycheck Family. Part 3

When making decisions about life and health insurance, it is important to consider the special circumstances of the two-paycheck family. Only then can you be sure of getting coverage suited to your particular family's needs. This article discusses insurance options and retirement plans.

Why Buy Life Insurance?

The main purpose of life insurance is to protect dependents against financial hardship in the event of the breadwinner's death. Although there are two breadwinners in two-paycheck families, there is still a need to carry policies on both. Even though there will be a surviving wage earned if the main breadwinner should die, a drop in income will be noticeable, and can affect a family's standard of living. The added income from a life insurance policy can provide for a gradual decline in the family's spending.

Life insurance can also help to cover other expenses such as funeral expenses, unpaid medical bills, mortgage payments, housekeeping, or child-care costs.

For those families who have sufficient investments to guarantee a continuing income, a life insurance policy might be purchased to cover estate taxes. This would ensure that investments such as stocks and real estate would not have to be sold at an inopportune time. Such a policy could also ensure that children will have opportunity for a good education.

What type of insurance should two-paycheck families buy? It all depends on your family's finances and goals. Whatever you decide, be sure to consider the group policies you and your spouse may have from your employers.

There are three basic types of life insurance: term, whole life, and endowment. All life insurance policies are one or more of the basic types.

Term insurance gives insurance protection for a specified term of one or more years. Benefits are paid only if the policyholder dies within the time that the policy is in effect. Term insurance does not earn cash values. It does, however, give you the greatest amount of protection for your insurance dollar.

Whole Life Insurance provides coverage for the life of the insured person. Premiums or payments generally remain the same for the life of the policy. When a policyholder is young, payments are higher than those for the same amount of term insurance. Later in life, however, payments for whole life are smaller than those for term insurance. Payments on whole life insurance are generally made for the life of the individual although it is possible to buy a policy which will be paid up at age 65 or younger. The premiums for these policies are higher than for whole life insurance.

Endowment Insurance protects the insured person for a certain number of years. At the end of this time, the value of the policy is paid to the policyholder and the insurance ends. If the policyholder dies when the policy is in effect, the full amount of the policy is paid to the beneficiary. The premiums for this type of policy are higher than for the same amount of whole life and term.

When the holder of a life insurance policy dies, the value of the policy is paid to a named beneficiary. There are several ways these death benefits can be paid. Each has its own advantage.

Lump Sum—Most policies are paid this way, unless you choose one of the following options. This might be the choice for a beneficiary who has the ability to make investment decisions.

Interest Option—In this plan, the insurance company holds and invests the money until the beneficiary asks for it. Regular payments are made of the interest earned. This method will be used to create a fund for family emergencies, college expenses, or some other future need.

Amount Option—Regular monthly payments in an amount of your choice are paid to the beneficiary until the proceeds and the interest are gone. Both the amount and the time option are used to provide an income for the family while the children are growing up.

Time Option—This plan provides regular payments for a certain number of years.

Income for Life Option—This plan guarantees a regular income for the life of the beneficiary. Monthly payments would be small for a young person, larger for an older person.

The choice of a settlement option can be made by the policyholder, or left to the beneficiary. When you are making your decision, be sure to consider the beneficiary's needs and skill in money management.

Health Insurance

With today's medical costs, health insurance is a necessity for most families. However, just because you have a policy, you are not automatically covered for any medical emergency. You need to become familiar with what your health insurance program will and will not do for you. Here are some points to consider when evaluating policies:

—How much is the deductible? This is the initial amount of health expenses that you are required to pay. Check to see if the amount is a yearly deductible or one for each illness.

—What about co-insurance? This is the percentage of health expenses you pay after the deductible. (For example, a specific percentage, such as 20 percent, may have to be covered by you.) Find out the limits of the co-insurance. Is there a cut-off point, or is your co-insurance lowered as your expenses rise?

—Pre-existing conditions, which are medical conditions you have before the policy goes into effect, are usually excluded by most health insurance policies.

—What is the benefit maximum? This is the limit that a policy will pay for any given benefit or covered service. Similar to this, is the lifetime maximum. This refers to the limit that a policy will pay on a lifetime total of benefits.

—Is the policy renewable? Your ability to renew the policy may or may not be guaranteed, and this is an important item to check.

—When purchasing a health insurance plan, you should coordinate these benefits with those you or your spouse may receive from employers. If either or both of you contribute to your employer's health plan, be sure to evaluate the merits of the plan. You may be paying more than necessary, or you may be duplicating coverage. Be sure to consider all factors such as deductible, cost, options, or exclusions in your decision. The cheaper plan is not necessarily the best.

A family's concern over health insurance coverage often grows with age. Be sure to take into account how your health insurance program will be affected by the retirement of one or both working spouses.

If you have health insurance where you work, ask your personnel department what kind of benefits, if any, you will have in retirement. In many cases, the benefits differ, and are usually lower. If you also have an individual policy, ask your agent to what age the company will renew the policy. Medicare starts at age 65, so it is important to determine what protection you will have if you retire before that age.

If you have a health policy purchased before Medicare went into effect in 1966, find out whether it is a "lifetime guaranteed" plan or one ending at a specific age. If you've bought one since Medicare began, it often guarantees that you can purchase a Medicare supplement from the company without a physical examination. Everyone over age 65 is not eligible for Medicare. Be aware of your eligibility and make plans to obtain it or some other program. Remember, once you retire it is often too late to change policies. Check your insurance coverage now. Planning for retirement takes just that—planning. By beginning your retirement preparations early you have a greater chance of being financially secure at age 65.

Social Security

Social Security covers most workers and their families with retirement benefits, survivor's benefits, disability insurance, and Medicare. To become eligible, a worker needs to earn a certain number of quarters. A worker born after 1929 needs 40 quarters (up to four quarters can be earned each year). For someone born before 1919, the number of necessary quarters is computed by the Social Security Office. The amount of benefits received is based on your average earnings during your working life.

For a free statement of earnings credited to your social security record, contact your local office. They will send you a request form for this information. On this same form, you can add a statement to request the number of quarters you have earned. You may also be interested in the pamphlet, "Estimating Your Social Security Retirement Check," available at any office.

Social Security regulations are subject to change, and the benefits you receive as a two-paycheck family will be, to a great extent, based on individual circumstances. Contact the local Social Security office for answers to your specific questions.

Some federal employees do not pay into the Social Security system. If you work for the government for a number of years, and then became employed by a private company, you are eligible for both a government pension and Social Security benefits. Now let's reverse roles. Suppose you worked for the government. Your spouse worked for a private company and contributed to Social Security. Then your spouse dies. You would probably assume that you could collect your government pension plus his (her) Social Security benefits. This, however, is not the way the system works. In many cases, your benefits from Social Security as a dependent or survivor of your spouse will be reduced by the amount of your pension.

When you are planning for retirement, do not expect Social Security benefits to provide complete retirement income. The program was never designed to do this. Rather, benefits were seen as a way to provide a base on which people would add their pensions, personal savings, and other investment incomes. While it may be difficult in these inflationary times to put something away for retirement, it will be worth it in the long run.

Retirement Plans

Work and pensions seem to go hand in hand. Approximately 50 percent of all American workers in commerce and industry, as well as 75 percent of all government civilian workers, are covered by pension plans other than Social Security. These figures do not include workers with Individual Retirement Accounts and Keoghs (self-employed workers). Therefore, most two-paycheck couples to have some form of pension coverage.

It is important to note, however, that being covered by a pension plan does not necessarily mean that you will receive any benefits. Benefit payments depend on the employee's age and length of service. The law does not require employers to provide pension plans (approximately one-half do not). Nor does the law provide a way for unvested employees to transfer benefits when changing jobs.

Vesting means that an employee who has met certain requirements, such as length of service, has a right to accrued pension benefits from both the employer and worker contributions. An employee who has not met the requirement for vesting still retains the right to any mandatory or voluntary contributions he/she made to the plan. Vesting can be either total or partial.

There are several different formulas for vesting, but you must be 50 percent vested after 10 years, and 100 percent vested after 15 years. This means that after 10 years of employment with one company, you are entitled (at retirement) to all the payments you have made into the plan, as well as 50 percent of the contributions your employer made. Be sure to check your pension plan to find out how you are covered.

Here are some areas you need to be aware of now, so they do not become major problems later on:

—Most pension plans offer an "annuity upon retirement" (monthly pension benefits), which can sound pretty comforting. This annuity, however, covered only the life of the working spouse and when this spouse dies, the remaining spouse receives nothing. A worker can usually remedy this situation by electing at retirement to take an annuity with a survivor benefit clause.

—You need to be aware, however, that while the worker is still alive, the survivor annuity plan will pay less than the amount of a straight annuity. When the worker dies, the remaining spouse receives only one-half of the survivor annuity amount each month.

—Be aware also that should the worker die before retirement, there are usually no pension benefits to the surviving spouse. Pension plans do differ. Be sure to check yours now, before retirement, to be sure of what your benefits will be.

What can you do if your employer has no pension plan? Open an IRA (Individual Retirement Account). If you are self-employed, then you can open a Keogh plan. There are limits to how much you can invest yearly in either of these plans, and you can't begin to collect until age 59½ (unless disabled). However, there are also some advantages:

—You get 100 percent vesting from the start.

—You control where your money is invested.

—Part-time work is covered.

—There are no age or length of service limits.

Survivor benefits are guaranteed to the beneficiary of your choice, whether you die before retirement age or not.

For details on these plans and investments, you can contact a stockbroker, mutual fund representative, banker, insurance agent, accountant, or the Local IRS office.

ACTIVITIES

1. Review your insurance policies—life, health, property, disability—to be sure that you and your spouse are adequately covered for all emergencies.

2. Life and health insurance policies through employers will usually not be in effect once you leave the company. Even if you retire, your benefits from a company insurance plan will often be lower than when you were employed. Check with your personnel office about how your benefits under these policies will be affected.

3. Contact your local Social Security office to request information on the number of quarters you have earned under Social Security.

4. Read your respective pension plans. Note what you don't understand fully. Then make an appointment for you and your spouse to meet with someone in the personnel department who can explain it to both of you.

5. Estimate the benefits you and your spouse will receive at retirement. Will this be adequate for you to live on? If no, start planning now to increase your retirement income.
